Events Will Proves Whether the Majority of the People Have Decided Wisely or Not-The Party Has Noth-

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 7 .- William J. Bryan gave out the following statement: TO THE BIMETALLISTS OF THE UNITED STATES: Conscious that millions of loyal bearts are saddened by temporary defeat. I beg to offer a word of hope and encouragement. No cause ever had supporters more brave, earnest and devoted than those who have espoused the cause of bimetallism. They have fought from conviction, and have fought with all the zeal which conviction inspires. Events will prove whether they are right or wrong. Having done their duty as they saw it, they have nothing to regret. The republican candidate has been hersided as the advance agent of prosperity. If his policies bring real prosperity to the American people those who opposed him will share in that prosperity. If, on the other hand, his policies prove an injury to the people generally, those of his supporters who do not belong to the office-holding class or to the privileged classes, will suffer in common with those who opposed him. The friends of bimetallism have not been vanquished; they have simply been overcome. They believe that the gold standard is a conspiracy of the money changers against the welfare of the human race, and until convinced of their error they will continue the warfare against it.

The contest has been waged this year under great embarrassments and against great odds. For the first time during this generation pub-lic attention has been centered upon the money question as the paramount issue, and this has been done in spite of all attempts upon the part of our opponents to prevent it. The republican convention held out the delusive hope of international bimetallism, while republican leaders labored secretly for gold monometallsm. Gold standard democrats have publicly advocated the election of the Indianapolis ticket, while they labored secretly for the election of the republican ticket. The trusts and corporations have tried to excite a fear of lawlessness, while they themselves have been defying the law, and American financiers have boasted that they were the custodians of national honor while they were secretly bartering away the nation's financial independence. But in spite of the administration and its supporters; in spite of the threats of money losners at home and abroad; in spite of coercion practiced by corporate employers; in spite of trusts and syndicates; in spite of an enormous republican campaign fund; and in spite of the influence of a hostile press, bimetallism has almost triumphed in its first great fight. The loss of a few states, and that, too, by very small pluralities, has defeated bimetallism for the present, but bimetallism emerges from the contest stronger than it was our months ago.

I desire to commend the work of the three national committees which have joined in the management of this campaign. Co-operation between the members of distinct political parties is always difficult; but it has been less so this year than usual. Interest in a common cause of great importance has reduced friction to a minimum. I hereby express my personal gratitude to the individual members as well as to the executive officers, of the national committee of the democratic, populist and sliver parties for their efficient, untiring and unseitish labors. They have laid the foundation for future success and will rest until victory is at last as-

No personal or political friend need grieve because of my defeat. My ambition has been to secure immediate legislation rather than to enjoy the honors of office and, therefore, defeat brings to me no feeling of personal loss. Speaking for the wife who has shared my labors, as well as for myself. I desire to say that we have been amply repaid for all that we have done. In the love of millions of our fellow citizens, so kindly expressed, in knowledge gained by personal contact with the people, and in broadened sympathies, we find full compensation for whatever efforts we have put forth. Our hearts have been touched by devotion of friends and our lives shall prove our appreciation of the affection of the plain people, an affection which we prize as the richest reward which this campaign has brought. In the face of an enemy rejoicing in its victory, let the roll be called for the next engagement and urge all friends of bimetallism to renew their allegience to the cause. If we are right, as I believe we are, we shall yet tri-

Until convinced of his error, let each advocate of bimetallism continue the work. Let all silver clubs retain their organization, hold regular meetings and circulate literature. Our opponents have succeeded in this campaign and must now put their theories to the test. Instead of talking mysteriously about "sound money" and "an honest dollar" they must now elaborate and defend a financial system. Every step taken by them should be publicly considered by the silver clubs. Our cause has prospered most where the money question has been longest discussed among the people. During the next four years it will be studied all over this nation even more than it has been

The year 1900 is not far away. Before that year arrives, international bimetallism will cease to deceive. Before that year arrives those who have called themselves gold | either grace or standard democrats will become bimetallists and be with us, or they will become republicans and be open enemies. Before that year arrives, trusts will have convinced still more people that a trust is a menace to private welfare and to public safety. Before that year arrives the evil effect of a gold standard will even more evident than they now, and the people, ready to demand an American financial policy for the American people, will join with us in the immediate restoration of the free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver at the present legal ratio of 16 to 1 without waiting for the aid or consent of any other nation.

FASHION LETTER.

Handsome Winter Gowns and Other Cos tumes - Narrower Skirts and Smaller Sixeves-Something Satisfactory to Every

[Special New York Correspondence.] In their general features the majority of the autumn fashious will be maintained throughout the winter season. The fronts and sides of skirts are unmistakably narrower, but are still very full at the back. Sleeves have all grown beautifully less and dress waists appear in the greater variety. There are bodices long and short, severe and ornate. suitable alike for cloth, velvet, satin brocade, corded silk, and the host of fancy wools. The round waist still prevails, both on day and evening gowns, and there are also many charming new waists with short points postfilion and circular backs and basque effects ad libitum. The seven and nine gored skirts have an immense popularity among winter gowns. There are likewise draped models, plaited skirts with yoke tops, and kilted styles with pointed overskirts. Each famous Paris house has this season sent out its own special models, differing from those of other designers in certain details of arrangement and adjustment, but all showing a modified form of outline and an absence of heavy, stiff interlining. Different fabrics are given different treatment, and the models vary as the skirts are designed for the house, the Soleil cloth, much like a satin-finished ladies' cloth of light quality, is particularly adapted to costumes that are braided. This fabric is double width, and appears this season in very beautiful colorings. Braided is the rage, and even velvet and camel'shair serge costumes are trimmed with rows of braiding, while the smooth cloths are fairly covered with it.

All the various shades of blue, green, gray, brown, besides black, are fashant to the touch, are chosen for useful winter gowns. There are so many this season that almost everyone seleats these wools in this color. Corselets, centures, short-jacket effects, fancy jacket-bodices, short capes rande of two and sometimes three kinds of fur, or of velvet with fur accessories, are among the very popular garments of the season.

All neck trimmings are still very high at the throat, and all ball gowns and other full-dress toilettes are cut very low, and the sleeves consist merely of large butterfly bows of satin ribbon, pointed caps or triple frills of diaphanous material. Many of the cloth capes are lined with lovely fancy silks or satins in soft contrasting colors, and when the hood is lined to correspond a very charming effect is produced, and there are many opportunities of showing the pretty lining, either by accident or design. A brown cloth cape lined with rose-colored fancy satin brocade has the hood similarly lined and bordered with dark-brown fur matching that which outlines the cape. A superk costume of mess-green corded silk trimmed with braiding and fur has a green velvet cape lined with rose-colored satin with large directoire muff to match, and a velvet toque trimmed

GOOD ROAD MAKERS. Wide Tires on Wagons Serve as the Best

It has been truly said that no other single element, except ignorant roadmaking, adds so much to the heavy burden of supporting the highways as the use of narrow tires, which cut up the 10ads instead of ironing them smoothly down.

Look at the beautiful, glossy path which the bicyclists make for themselves at the edge of the road before the puddles are fairly dried up, and then at the bottomless abysses plowed by loaded wagons, and you will have the whole thing in a nutshell.

The horses' hoofs, of course, chop up face irritation compared with the deep and fatal wounds made by the narrowtired wheels when once a rut is started.

Build a reasonably good road and equip the vehicles with tires with something the same proportion to weight as the tires of a bicycle, with the tread of the rear wheels different from that of the front wheels, so as not to follow in the same path, and the surface will not be rutted at all. The wheels serve as rollers, and instead of cutting up the roads they make them better.

Fine philosophy we show, to be sure. We tax ourselves poor to keep steam tollers at work on our highways, and then carefully select wagons which will undo the work of the roller as quickly silky camel's. as possible.-Milford (Mass.) Gazette,

AMERICAN HORSES.

Well-Bred Animals Find a Ready Salo iz the German Market.

An influential German illustrated fournal notices the report of the American consul at Bremen, and states that Germany furnishes a good market for American horses. This is a significant fact and a suggestive one, also. It has are made up almost invariably in skirt | not been long since the idea of sending American horses to Europe would have been ridiculed. The advance in this branch of live stock industry in this country has been wonderful.

The best blood of American English (which includes Scotland) and French horses has been used to improve American horses. And the result is that these horses are now going abroad in considerable numbers. Since 1895 it appears that 10,000 horses have been shipped from America to German ionabl- but black leads in all the ports, the chief ports being Hamburg smooth-surfaced textiles. It is stated also by the same paper that purchasers for these American horses have gone from Sweden and ways of brightening up black gowns | Denmark to Hamburg to obtain them, which shows that there is a market in those countries for American horses.

But it is well to note the fact that poor stock fails to find purchasers at remunerative figures, and German newspapers warn American shippers that it is useless to send such inferior animals to Germany. The fact is also emphasized that great care should be taken in handling and feeding the horses on shipboard.—Farmers' Voice.

HORTICULTURAL NOTES.

If apples that are stored in a cool place are headed up in a barrel, they will keep better.

Unsuccessful Spraying.

On the subject of unsuccessful spraying, the Missouri experiment station bulletin says: "We sometimes hear of unsuccessful results from spraying, but these experiments show, while all disruses cannot be immediately and totally eradicated, that continued spraying will cause the fungous diseases mentioned to grow less each year. One intelligent fruit grower sent word to the station that he had carefully sprayed according to directions, but that there was more scab on his sprayed than on his unsprayed trees. A careful examination of apples from his orchard revealed the fact that they were badly burned (probably by impure chemicals or too strong a mixture), but there was no trace of fungous disease in his mental Station: "The hand separator consists of a small metal bowl, which is revolved with great rapidity by means of cogwheel connections. Milk turned into the bowl separates into skim milk, which accumulates in the outer portion of the bowl, and cream, which gathers near the center. After the separation in the bowl the cream and skim milk escape from it through outlets into separate tubes, from which they are conducted into cans. This action of separation is continuous so long as the bowl is revolving at suitable

"Separators are now commonly sold on the market that do satisfactory work, practically removing all the butter fat from the milk. On the average farm probably every 100 pounds of skim milk secured by the old-fashioned methods contains from one-fourth to one-half pound of fat. More is left in the milk than farmers are often aware of. The properly-run separator removes nearly all, if not all of this.

"The writer believes that every person who keeps five or more cows, with the object of making as much butter from them as possible, who makes giltedged butter and who is interested in progressive dairying would find in the hand separator a money-making machine. Other people are likely to be disappointed if they buy a hand separator."

APPLES FOR COWS.

They Have All the Properties Which Make Linseed So Valuable.

Apples are abundant this year, and in many cases it is an open question whether it will pay to ship them. We Weekly. would advise that only the very best quality be shipped and the rest be fed to the cows. Where markets are so depressed as at this time it often happens that common stock will not pay any profit at all, while really choice fruit will bring a fair price. If, therefore, we ship only the best we have a better chance of making something on our apples, and at the same time have a lot of good feed for the cows, or, in fact, almost any kind of stock.

THE ROADS OF INDIA. They Are Built Splendidly and Kept in Perfect Repair.

India is a land of good roads. Between all the larger towns well-shaded macadamized roads are to be found. The average city pavements of Chicago, St. Paul or New York are not as good as these long stretches of well-built roads, with their culverts of solid stone masonry, and their white-washed milestones shining like solitary monuments in the hot sun. There is an enormous outlay of money and labor in blasting and buttressing, macadamizing these roads; but in developing the agricultural and commercial interests of the mountain regions they are worth all and more than they cost. The inner ranges of the Himalayas furnish perfect climate and soil for the production of tea and all the fruits of the temperate zone. Hundreds of thousands of acres of tea plants have been put out since these cart roads, as they are commonly called, were built. Thousands of Englishmen are employes in managing these estates, and all their supplies of food, building material and machinery are brought to them, and all the products of the estates are carted out to the various terminals. Cart from 50 cents to one dollar per day.

A woman's personal at is the weapon with which she conquers her world. Almost every woman believes that she possesses at least some one attractive feature and strives to make the most of that. But mere regularity of feature is not the most attractive form of beauty. Mankind is more influenced by the bright glowing vitality of perfect health. A classic cast of countenance will not make a woman attractive and captivating, if she is pale, complexion or unwholesome breath.

These complaints are due to imperfect mutrition. The digestive and blood-making organs fail to extract the needed nourish-

The Faults and Follies of the Age Are numerous, but of the latter none more ridiculous than the promiscuous a more ridiculous than the promiscuous and random use of laxative pills and other drastic cathartics. These wrench, convulse and weaken both the stomach and the bowels. If Hostetter's Stomach Bitters be used instend of these no-remedies, the result is accomplished without pain and with great benefit to the bowels, the stomach and the liver. Use this remedy when constinction is manifested, and thereby prevent it from coming chronic.

"How opp it is," said Pat, as he trudged along on foot one sultry day, "that a mann never meets a cart going the same way as he is!"—Household Words.

"Folks dat is allus lookin' foh trouble," said Uncle Eben, "hab jes' one t'ng ter brag about. Dey doan' habdly ebber git. disapp'inted."—Washington Star.

THOUGHT THAT KILLED A MAN!

HE thought that he could triffle with disease. He was run down in health, felt tired and worn out, complained of dizziness, billousness, backaches and headaches. His liver and kidneys were out of order. He thought to get well by dosing himself with cheap remedies. And then came the ending. He fell a victim to Bright's disease! The money he ought to have inremedy went for a tombstone is the only standard remedy in the world for kidney and liver complaints. It is the only remedy which physicians universally prescribe. It is the only remedy that is back-ed by the testimony of thou-sands whom it has relieved and cured.
